

Data protection procedures of Honesty Europe

We have updated the data protection procedures of Honesty Europe. The update has been done in line with the General Data Protection Regulation in the EU (GDPR).

We are open about using your data. We do not sell or give away your data to third parties. We are responsible for using your data in a correct way and we handle it according to current laws and regulations.

What data do we collect and why? Our customer database includes your name and email (in some case also your home country and your phone number). You are entitled to change or delete your data in our records at any time. We collect contact information for the purpose of keeping in touch in regards to workshop and retreats, and for billing and marketing purposes.

What rights do you have in regards to your personal data? You can change or delete data by informing us about it. Kindly note that according to accounting laws we are obliged to keep some data for a fixed time period. That includes data on invoices. You can restrict collection and usage of your personal data at any time. You are entitled to check all data we have collected about you in a text format. You can also forbid the usage of your data for marketing purposes.

How do we protect your data? Your data can be seen only by appointed personnel who have the right to see and change data. The user profiles of the responsible people are password protected and other people cannot access the information.

If you no longer want to receive our newsletter or other material from us, kindly inform us at info@honestyeurope.com. We are also happy to give you further information on our data protection procedure.
